Superbas Win Their Second Game from McGraw's Men, and the Ancient Wheezes Will Soon Have to Seek New Home.

By HEYWOOD BROUN.

The Superbas won their second straight game from the Giants at Ebbets Field yesterday. The score was 5 to 1, and the crowd was much pleased. Somehow or other a Brooklyn crowd can get an enormous amount of satisfaction out of seeing the Giants beaten. Throngs in other cities view the downfall of McGraw's men with indifference. They have grown

The joy expressed by the Brooklyn rooters yesterday was due in a measure to the fact that for the present the Superbas are in the race for the championship. Just now they hold second place. If the Phillies had been defeated Brooklyn would be only two points behind the leaders. Since Moran's men won, the Superbas trail by twelve points.

Pennant excitement in Brooklyn is ephemeral, but the hatred of the Giants endureth. Time will soothe all the emotion now surging across the river in regard to world's series and such things, but time has not served to heal the breach between the Giants and the Superbas, or rather Brooklyn and New York.

In the way of pitching power Brooklyn carries a greater aggregate of class, with Boston next. Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are forced to bank in the main upon two star slabmen-Mamaux and Alexander.

While Mamaux has won 18 games and lost but 5, Adams, Harmon and McQuillen together have only won something like 28 out of 56 games—maintaining nothing better than an even break. Alexander has drawn more help from Mayer, but this athlete in the last six weeks has not been able to win half his games, while Demaree, Rixey and Chalmers have all fallen below the .500 mark in combined conquests. On the other hand, with Sherrod Smith, Dell, Rucker, Coombs and Pfeffer, Brooklyn hasn't been forced to depend upon any one lone star, as Pittsburgh and Philadelphia have.

Brooklyn at bat carries more of a punch than any of the other three, with Pittsburgh next, Boston third and Philadelphia fourth. But none of the four clubs is hitting the ball as a flag winner should—all four being below .250.
